NATURE

and Traditions of the Biella District

Embraced by rolling hills that gently sweep their way up into mountains, the Biella district is land rich in tradition, natural heritage, and monuments to faith. A visit to the Ricetto Candelo is an absolute must. This fortified structure enclosing an area of 13,000 m² was built by the townsfolk of Candelo using pebbles wedged together in a herringbone pattern to defend their property – above all food and wine – from the incursions of passing armies. Today, artists' workshops face onto the cobbled lanes of the Ricetto, largely conserved in original condition. Just outside the Ricetto opens out the huge expanse of the nature reserve Baragge, a naturalistic paradise, unique for its alternating strips of grasslands and stretches of bracken and heather, all somewhat reminiscent of the African savannah. From here, take a short visit to the ecological museum of Cossato, and then move on to see the hamlet of Bonda di Mezzana, and the modern art exhibition that lines its streets. In Mortigliengo, the Workshop Museum documents traditional techniques for the production of walnut oil and apple vinegar, the preservation of chestnuts, and the farming and spinning of hemp. The museum also features original furniture and furnishings from mid-last century and offers an interesting insight into local rural life and industry.
