THE CANAVESE DISTRICT

Hidden Treasures in a Land of Discovery

A land of manors, churches, towers and forts, the Canavese district is steeped in a history which today can be appreciated in its modern vocation for industry, on the one hand, and on the other, its rich gastronomic traditions. This dual personality comes to the fore in Ivrea, the economic and administrative powerhouse of the region, originally an Ancient Roman city, today still towered over by its imposing medieval castle and famed for its historic orange-throwing carnival. The old Olivetti plant is now home to the MAAM – the open-air Museum of Modern Architecture – which has taken the industrial site and returned it to the city as a place of culture and congregation, whilst conserving the memory of the industrial and social complex, a tribute to enlightened capitalism.

A true gem hidden away within the complex is the Church of Saint Bernardino, which houses a precious series of late fifteenth-century frescoes depicting the life of Christ, painted by Martino Spanzotti. Just outside the city, Lake Sirio, the most stunning of the five lakes in the area, is famed for the quality of its crystal waters in which you can go swimming.

Set against the evocative backdrop of the Serra, the striking moraine that distinguishes the area, Masino Castle still preserves its original decorative features, offering breath-taking views over the Ivrea district. Whilst admiring the beauty of the area, don't forget to try the excellence of the local cuisine and wines, in particular the mushrooms and Canestrelli biscuits, accompanied by a fine drop of Erbaluce or Carema.
