TRUFFLES

and Culture in the Langhe District

The Langhe and Roero districts enclose a heritage of inestimable worth, set against a landscape shaped by vineyards, which with the coming and going of the seasons lend a marvellous touch of colour to the rolling hills. The real treasure of these lands lies hidden under the poplars and oaks – the truffle, locally known as trifula. This valuable underground mushroom with its intoxicating aroma and unique flavour is the delicious leitmotiv of local cuisine in the autumn period. The truffle grounds of Monchiero offer the experience of a traditional truffle “hunt” with specially-trained truffle-sniffing dogs. Alba and its surrounds though offer a stage for more than just the gastronomic International White Truffle Festival, with an artistic and cultural tradition which has also been shaped by the peculiarities of the local territory. The works of Beppe Fenoglio and Cesare Pavese reveal a strong cultural attachment to these lands, and itineraries can be followed to discover not only these great writers but also the places that inspired their creative genius. The roots of the Alba area and its history can be traced in the Eusebio Civic Museum, with its archaeological and natural science collections.

Alba is a wonderfully inviting town, to be explored by wandering through the streets, through the wealth of its historical and architectural wonders, starting from its remarkable cathedral. Take any one of the numerous opportunities to seek out quality, locally-grown and made products in street markets or prestigious shops that line the renowned Via Vittorio.
